

There has been no opportunity for public debate and little public exposure of the proposed rule changes, but only a tremendous amount of input from the companies involved. The vote on the rule change should be put off by Michael Powell until there has been public as well as private input.